The White Coats The White Coats is an indie pop band from Los Angeles, California, United States. History The White Coats began in the spring of 2012, as a collaboration between Thomas Bedard and Ross Keane. The two were friends prior to joining forces and created a small project focused on songs that were less than two minutes long. Their next project grew from the expansion of this shorter format. Having started to compose in a more spontaneous fashion, The White Coats created their first full album, Providence, which was released on May 31, 2014 through Kitsuné. As well as releasing their own material, the band has contributed songs to a variety of artists including: Nada Surf, Phosphorescent and Vincent Dimoff. Their work with Dimoff led to his band, The Virgins, to name their record Murder the Mice in his honor. Members Thomas Bedard - lead vocals, keyboards Ross Keane - lead guitar, backing vocals Nate Michael George - bass, backing vocals Jonathan Jacobs - drums

My first project was a short film, called "Hope for Women." The film has been shown around the world and a number of celebrities have made cameo appearances. At the time of this writing, it has been viewed on over 700 websites and over 20,000 times on You Tube. In the face of violence, poverty, and war, this film gives hope and encouragement. The women, like the other characters, are happy. Many of the citizens have been displaced from their homes due to conflict in other countries. I created this short film to spark conversation about that which is not talked about in Africa. In
